Episode 29: Meet the Goodest: The Good Country Index for 2022

In this episode, Simon introduces the fifth iteration of the Good Country Index, now published in partnership with Diplomatic Courier. He explains the nature of the index as an aggregation of contributions to the global good. Nick pulls out particular countries for scrutiny including the U.S. in 46th place. They agree that the top of the table (with Sweden once again in first place ahead of Denmark and Germany) shows the collaborative nature of European countries. Other countries examined include Russia—continuing a decline, China and the stark contrast between the UAE in 65th and Qatar in 109th with an especially poor score in cultural contributions (136th). Countries performing well include Cyprus in 16th and South Africa in 44th. The conversation wraps up considering how the index plays into actual policy.
